A DIFFICULT TERM.

The Word "Bourgeois" and a French Woman's Definition.

I am always embarrassed when asked by foreigners to give the definition of the word "bourgeois," which is generally emphasized disdainfully. The dictionary defines it as "common, without distinction." It is not exactly that. Bourgeoisism, like provincialism, is a mentality. It represents a kernel without the pulp and exanates from the shell of the dinner pot. It is one of the props of society. I am not a beautiful nor graceful. Without it, however, the world could not retain its equilibrium, yet with it alone the world could not progress. It gives to individuals the impetuosity of a shell. One often finds its characteristics in persons who have received a good education, in those who possess superior culture, who have taste and a sense of beauty. It betrays itself by mean and narrow ideas, by impudic intolerance, by stubborn blindness and, above all, by an incapacity to understand liberty or to accord it generously. This mentality creates a certain atmosphere which is felt at once. The workman, the peasant, the artist, are not bourgeois. I could name a king who is much more so than many of the residents of our worst districts. Napoleon I. was bourgeois; Napoleon III. was not. Balzac, Mephistopheles, were not bourgeois; Zola was. England, Italy, Spain, are not bourgeois; Germany is, but her emperor is not, and so one might continue indefinitely. —From Mme. Pierre de Coulevain, Translated by Jessie Henderson Brewer.

A BRONZE STATUE.

The Model, the Core and the Pouring of the Metal.

Immense pains and immense labor attend the production of a bronze statue of any size even after the artist has done his work," remarks a sculptor. "To begin with, the plaster model has to be completely covered with small lumps of a special kind of sand, sometimes as many as 1,500 to 2,000 of these pieces being required. After these blocks of sand are dry they are taken off the cast one at a time and carefully put together to form the mold. The latter is then filled with clay, and the same operation is again gone through, a facsimile of the plaster cast being thus obtained. "Then comes the most delicate part of the whole work. The clay model, or 'core,' as it is technically called, has to have a quarter of an inch taken off its entire surface, which, as may readily be imagined, is anything but easy, especially if the subject be at all ornate. "The 'core' is then again put into the mold—this has of course to be reconstructed once more—being kept exactly in the center by means of iron rods. "The molten bronze is then poured in from the top, completely filling the space between the 'core' and the mold. After it has cooled the latter is again removed and the clay interior extracted, when the statue, somewhat rough and needing a slight touching up, is revealed."—Cassell's Journal.

One on the Teacher.

Among the corps of instructors in one of Washington's high schools is a woman highly esteemed as a teacher of American history. The class under her care had under consideration one day topics concerning the civil war when one volunteered, in illustration of some point, a lurid account of a battle in which he claimed, an uncle of his had participated. The teacher interposed to observe that the anecdote was totally incorrect, as the uncle in question was near her own age and she was not born until after the close of the war. At this the boy seemed a trifle chagrined at being so evidently in the wrong. After a few moments of embarrassed silence he said, with the naive air of one who has much the best of the situation: "Oh, but, Miss Blank, I did not mean the Revolutionary war!"—Pittsburg Leader.

In Society.

The negro barber on a limited train running from an eastern city to Chicago was once shaving a man whom he recognized as a well known merchant of Albany. The barber worked with especial skill and was rewarded with a substantial fee. When the barber was telling the other employees on the train of his good luck, he announced pompously: "He's shore a mighty fine gentleman, dat Mr. Smith. Jes' as nice a man as you'd wantter meet. I's often been in his sto' in Albany, but dis is de first time I's ever met him socias."—Lippincott's.

WIT OF AN IRISH STORY.

Lost, as a Rule, When the Tale is Reduced to Cold Type.

"Irish wit loses more in reduction to cold type than that of any other nation on earth." At least that is the opinion of a St. Louis Hibernian who himself furnishes many excellent examples of the article in question. "When an Irishman perpetrates a witicism it is always tinged with a personality which in print or even in the retelling is often completely lost. There is always something—a whiff, a smile, an arch expression, a shrug or gesture—that emphasizes the joke and must be seen to be appreciated. Sometimes an Irish witicism put into type is mistaken for mere dullness or superficiality. "I remember once hearing an Irishman tell a story about a wonderful old time king on the north coast who caught the devil at some trick and for a punishment made Old Harry carve his own head on one of the cliffs. The story was told as seriously as a sermon would be preached. No one could apparently be more sincere than the story teller. He seemed to believe the legend as devoutly as though it came directly from holy writ. "After he had wound up the narrative, noticing a smile on my face, he stared in apparent surprise. 'Don't ye believe it? Sure, the old king's hammer and chisel is kept in the church belfry, and what better proof could ye ax?' And he gave a wink and a grin and spread out both hands in a gesture of exultation just as a lawyer would when posing before a jury and putting his most convincing argument in the form of a question. "It was the most exquisite bit of acting I ever saw. The tone of perfect conviction in which he told the story was inimitable; then the contrast from solemnity to comic display at the idea of any one being so grossly incredulous as not to believe the story and the wink which indicated that he didn't believe it himself, were simply talking for amusement, were worthy of any actor that ever trod the boards. Yet in the type all this was lost. To appreciate properly the wit of an Irish story you must hear the Irishman tell it."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SOAP IS ANCIENT.

It Was Used by the Gauls as a Dressing For the Hair.

Who invented soap? That it is not a modern convenience is well known, but just when it came into general use is a mystery. In Biblical times cleansing agents were used. The books of Job and Jeremiah contain the word "soap." But this is merely a convenient use of the word in translation. The Hebrew word "borth," for which it was substituted, is a general term for cleansing substances. What those substances were is unknown, but they were probably little like the modern soap. Pliny speaks of the invention of soap by the Gauls, who, however, used it only as a sort of pomade or hair dressing. He also refers to the use of both hard soap and soft soap by the Germans. The use of fuller's earth, which has saponaceous qualities, for cleansing purposes was known to the Romans. The French word for soap, savon, comes from Savona, France, where it was manufactured. The first manufacture of soap in London is said to have been in 1524, and previously Bristol had supplied it for use in the English cities. According to the historian Sismondi, a soapmaker was included in the retinue of Charlemagne, king of the Franks, at the end of the eighth century. In the excavation of the ruins of Pompeii a soap boiler's shop was uncovered, with soap in it, showing that the making of it was known in the first Christian century. Pliny, who wrote of the eruption of Vesuvius, which destroyed the two Roman cities in 79 A. D., stated that soap was made from tallow and ashes and that the German soap was the best. Galen also referred to the use of soap.

A Gracious Negative.

"The other day I got the politest turnaround," said a bond salesman, "that ever happened. I had been talking from 11 o'clock to almost noon to a nice fat fellow at college trying to interest him in $10,000 of what I considered very exceptional bonds. Finally he looked at his watch. " 'Bob,' he said, 'it's lunchtime.' "That's so," I answered. " 'Bob,' he went on, 'if I buy those bonds will you take me out to lunch?' "Of course," I said. "Why, sure." "Well, Bob," he concluded, 'you'd better have lunch with me this noon.' "—New York Sun.

Solitude Cures Crying.

"The best way to cure yourself of crying is to live alone," said the woman. "I used to cry an awful lot when I was married, but I hardly ever do now. It's the saddest thing in the world to hear yourself crying all alone in your flat, and what's the use anyway if there is nobody around to say 'There, there?'" —New York Press.

The Change.

"You don't love me as you used to," declared the terminant wife. "Before we were married you considered me absolutely perfect." "Yes," interrupted the downtrodden husband, "but now you're perfectly absolute."—Philadelphia Press.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Mrs. Coburg—It isn't right to throw Freddie with taking that noun out of your pocket. Why don't you, because the Coburgs—because it wasn't all taken. —Harper's Weekly.

THE COAL SACK IN THE SKY.

It Is Visible Because It Contains Nothing That Is Visible.

Immediately below the lower stars of the group which forms the Southern Cross there is a black patch in the sky, dark, sack shaped and mysterious. Scientifically accurate astronomers explain that it is not a patch, but rather something which becomes visible by reason of the proximity that it contains nothing that is visible. The lay mind, preferring bald reality to abstract truth, is somewhat startled to learn that an object is seen because there is nothing in it to see, but no one can dispute the fact. The coal sack is visible because it contains nothing that is visible. In other words, it is a vast hole in the stellar system in which there is not even a pinch of stellar dust to shed a glimmer of luminosity. It is typically and absolutely the quintessence of blackness. Because it is so, and in contradiction of all preconceived notions, the human eye can see it without the aid of a telescope or other instrument. Between the stars of the Milky Way there are many little holes in the stellar system—little by comparison, that is to say—but one must have telescopes and patience to find them. One need only cross the line to the southern hemisphere and locate the Southern Cross in order to see the coal sack. With the wealth of legendary tale and fable woven around the northern stars by the highly gifted races gazing on them through the ages that are gone one is tempted to speculate what tales would not have been constructed around that fathomless mystery had it appeared north instead of south of the equator. When it rouses the poetical impulse within the brain of aboriginal Australians, what might it not have done with the ancient Greeks or still more ancient Egyptians? But they were denied it. The aboriginal uses it as he uses most things, in a topsy turvy fashion. To him the world is a flat plain crowned with a dome shaped roof. When a man dies he has to go up to the roof and slowly journey over it until he can clamber down to the flat again and squeeze through, once more a man. The coal sack is the hole he goes through to get on to the roof, and to get up to it is a very long climb. The journey over the roof is also very long, and it is hard to squeeze through when he reaches the flat again. So long does it take that by the time a man has completed the journey not only his hair, but his skin, has grown white with age. Wherefore the black fellow who has made the journey rejoins his tribe as a white fellow. Thus it was that when the white man first came to the land the aborigines regarded him as a long lost comrade.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Biggest of All Animals.

The sulphur bottom—or blue whale, as it is better called by the Norwegians—is not only the largest living animal, but the largest that has ever lived, reaching a length of sixty feet or very rarely a little more. Whales grow much larger than this in books and newspapers, but in actual life not one in a dozen even of this species attains a length of eighty feet. The popular idea of a whale is that it is a clumsy animal, but, as shown by models, it has the graceful lines of a yacht. The total weight of a whale is about sixty tons, and unusually large and fat individuals must reach at least sixty-five tons. The largest animal of the past so far discovered is the great Dinosaur brontosaurus, and this big reptile weighed about thirty-eight tons.—Museum News.

Patriotism to the Surface.

SOME of our emotions are so embedded in the heart that they do not rise to the surface and manifest themselves unless ruffled or stirred by stress of circumstance. These very emotions are the deepest and best within us, and of this type are family affection and also patriotism. These are enshrined in the heart and so we do not daily parade them, but they rise in all their proud magnificence when circumstances call them forth.

Fate seems to believe with science that through disease we are apt to lose the function of the faculty which we do not exercise, so at intervals circumstances arise which bring all this deep reverence, love and humility out. To illustrate the patriotic fire which we keep lighted in the inner recesses of our heart and yet at times hardly know it is there, an admirable story entitled, "To Kill the President," is to be printed in a current magazine. The plot shows how the hero tolerates anarchy in the abstract, but when the object is concretely expressed in the words "To Kill the President," the patriotism within him lays hold of him and he becomes the defender of his country.

A similar effect results at the news of the anarchistic move against the American fleet while at Rio Janerio. When the news was circulated here on Saturday that the Connecticut had been blown up we realized then the blood of the patriot was coursing through our veins and though the report was maliciously false it seemed to quicken the feeling of every American and put him on the alert against enemies of good government.

The coming of the fleet here is awaited with pride and will be particularly effective on young Americans. While in our waters we can only hope that safety will be assured it and all due honor paid it.

One Millionaire's Mission.

EVERY man lives for some purpose and has his sphere in life to fill, so after spending two years in prison Griffen L. Griffen of Los Angeles has concluded that those two years were simply to point out the way to his mission in life—prison reform. When he was released we all read of his plans for the future which included this reformation work but looked on it as newspaper talk or a temporary hobby of the eccentric millionaire. However, he has really entered into it with all seriousness and to-morrow (Sunday) is to address a mass meeting at Calvary Church, San Francisco, under the auspices of the prison commission. Before his incarceration he was helping good people to keep out of jail. Now he is helping bad ones to get out and purposes to give them a chance. He had a bill for promiscuous parole, but his philanthropy and humanitarianism was confounded with sentimentality and he made the mistake of relying on the merits of his scheme instead of busying himself with "pull," which is the determining factor now days.

Who's the Sponge?

Those Frisco immunity baths
Have patrons from crooked paths;
And the laughable phase
Of this curious craze
Is the soft soap that Heney has.

Ruef is up to his neck,
His troubles seem like a peck;
But the soft soap's for him,
And he pulls the law's limb,
While soaking don't hurt him a speck.

They invited him into the tub,
They volunteered the rub;
They provided soft soap,
So he gave them the dope,
So Spreckels could be the big dub.

Now, naturally a question arises,
Though of course the public surmises,
Who's the sponge in the deal?
Aye, that's the rub, soon he will squeal
If Heney don't land the big prizes.

THE Presidential campaign is drawing very near and will soon be engaging the attention of the people almost to the exclusion of other public matters. It promises to be one of the most exciting political campaigns since 1884. The Republicans of California have already commenced to gird on their armor and will hold their primaries throughout the State on Monday, May 5th, at which will be selected delegates to the county and assembly district conventions. These conventions in turn will then select the delegates to the State and Congressional district conventions, which will convene in Sacramento on May 14th to choose delegates to the National convention to be held in Chicago, June 16th. A unique feature of the forthcoming contest to select the Republican National standard bearer next fall is that primaries have been called for by the State Central Committee of the party in all the counties of California in which Republicans are to cast their ballots for their choice for Presidential nominee.

CONGRESSMAN DUNCAN E. MCKINLAY, whose personality, ability and oratory has won him fame abroad since entering upon his Congressional duties in Washington a few years ago, has been honored by an invitation to be a joint speaker with Secretary Taft before the Tippecanoe Club at Cleveland, Ohio, next Wednesday. Secretary Taft, who stands for President Roosevelt's policies and will undoubtedly be his successor, is a great admirer of Mr. McKinlay, who previous to his departure for Washington last month was instrumental in launching the Taft boom in this State.

DOES NO HARM BUT MUCH GOOD

Recipe Is Easily Prepared at Small Cost, and Many Swear by It

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bed time:

One-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary troubles of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

The Scranton (Pa.) Times was first to print this remarkable prescription, in October, of 1906, since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and many other cities have made many announcements of it to their readers.

DRUGGIST SHOULTS FINED FIFTY BONES.

Practicing Optometry With out a License Was His Offense.

R. G. Shoults, formerly a druggist of this place but who is now running a drug store and practicing optometry in Napa, was fined $50 last Thursday by Justice Coombs of Napa.

Mr. Shoults was convicted about a month ago for practicing optometry without a license, and Thursday appeared for sentence. He was prosecuted by District Attorney Silva of Napa and Attorney Hilborn of San Francisco, counsel for the State Board of Optometry.

Judge Buckles, attorney for the offending eye specialist, will appeal to the Superior Court.

St. Valentine's Ball.

The St. Valentine's ball to be given in Union Hall on the evening of February 14th by Mr. and Mrs. Koenig, promises to be the social event of the season. It is a long time since there was a general turnout of our party-going people to a similar function, but the coming event promises to be an exception to the rule. The fame of Mr. and Mrs. Koenig as caterers is widespread and besides a general turnout by our own party-going people there will be many couples present from Santa Rosa, Glen Ellen and adjoining towns. Let us all join together, regardless of this set or that set, and make the St. Valentine's ball a social as well as financial success. Mr. and Mrs. Koenig are deserving of this at the hands of the people of the valley.

Heavy Rainfall

The rainfall in this valley the past few days has been the heaviest of the season. Thursday night for several continuous hours the rain came down in solid sheets, with the result that every leaky roof in town was very much in evidence. The hills and valley are one solid mass of green and the farming and dairying prospects in this valley never looked more promising on the advent of any new year. Still that anticipated fall in butter and eggs has not as yet materialized. However, potatoes have dropped to about one-half the cost of a year ago and if one wishes to economize we would suggest a potato diet.

BRASS WATCH MAN GETS FIFTY DAYS.

Is Convicted in Justice's Court of Sebastopol of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

H. J. Meyer, who was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan of this place several weeks ago and landed in the county jail at Santa Rosa, has been found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses, which he represented to be gold time-pieces, victimized a number of people in this county by palming off on them brass watches, which he represented to be gold time-pieces. Among his victims were D. H. Twing, the real estate man of this place, and Mr. Rackliff of Preston. It was for swindling the latter that he was tried in Justice Graham's court, Sebastopol, last Thursday and convicted.

The Press Democrat of Santa Rosa, in commenting on the conviction of Meyer, has this to say among other things:

"Similar cases tried in Napa county failed owing to the sharpness of Meyer in making his representations so that proper evidence could not be gotten into court. Mr. Rackliff, who was one of those suffering from the operations of Meyer, while on the witness stand, recalled the statement of P. T. Barnum to the effect that there 'is a sucker born every minute and some of them were twins,' adding, 'I guess I'm one of the twins.'"

NEW TELEPHONE AND ELECTRIC COMPANY.

Absorbs the Sonoma Rural, Guerneville and Other Local Phone Companies.

H. S. Johnson, formerly manager of the Sunset Telegraph and Telephone Company in this county, County Clerk Fred L. Wright of Santa Rosa and Jas. F. Tate of this place embarked in a new enterprise this week. The former, who has resigned his position with the Sunset people, to take effect January 31, after associating himself with Messrs. Wright and Tate, on Saturday last closed the deal with the owners of the several rural telephone lines in this county, the Sonoma Rural among the number, whereby their company, which will be known as the Northwestern Electric Company, takes over those properties. Mr. Johnson will be the active head and manager of the new company and as such will manage its affairs and extend the service in all the rural districts in the county that are not now enjoying a telephone service. The Northwestern Electric Company has established a main office on Third street, Santa Rosa, and a large stock of electrical goods have already been received by the new company.

The organization of this electric company is looked upon by many people in this part of the county as the forerunner of the advent at no distant day of the Snow Mountain electric company down this way.

Marcucci Wins the Replevin Suit.

The suit in replevin brought in Judge Small's Court by Abramo Marcucci against Henry Mians to recover possession of a milch cow was tried by his Honor last Tuesday afternoon. The case excited considerable interest among the farmers of the valley, quite a number of whom were present in court as spectators. Judge Small, after listening to the evidence pro and con, awarded the animal to Mr. Marcucci, who proved his ownership without question by reputable witnesses. The case was an interesting one from the fact that Mr. Mians, who had possession of the cow, when put upon the stand would not swear positively that it was the animal that he at one time owned and which had strayed off, and although it might have been the animal still there was not one iota of evidence to that effect. On the other hand Mr. Marcucci proved that he had bought the animal from a well known cattle dealer of Petaluma and presented other indisputable evidence as to his ownership.

In deciding the suit in favor of the plaintiff the Judge assessed the costs to the defendant's means.

Doc Engler Meets With a Painful Accident.

Doc Engler while at work felling cypress trees for the Northwestern Electric company, near Rudolph Spreckels ranch, last Wednesday, cut a deep gash in his left leg. The cut extended from the knee downward almost the entire length of the shin-bone. The sharp axe laid the flesh open to the bone and it required five stitches of the surgeon's needle to close the gaping wound. The accident was caused by the axe being deflected by an overhanging limb of the tree he was chopping down.

G. PELLISSIER DIES IN LOS ANGELES

His Death Recalls a Romance of the Early Days

Germain Pellissier, an uncle of Henry Pellissier proprietor of the Lawrence Villa in this place, died at his home in Los Angeles on the 15th inst. The deceased, who came to this State from France in 1868, was one of the pioneers in the sheep-raising industry of California, and had an extensive range and large flocks in Kern county for a number of years. After the passage of the "no-fence law" in the seventies he removed to Los Angeles and engaged in breeding French merino sheep, in which he was very successful. Of late years he had amassed a large fortune by the amazing rise in realty in the metropolis of the southland. The deceased was highly respected for his many good qualities and was 58 years of age when he died.

Like most of the old pioneers of the early days the deceased had his romance. When he arrived in San Francisco from his native country at the age of eighteen he left his sweetheart behind with the understanding that when he had accumulated a comfortable competence in the land of gold he would send for her and they would be married. Four or five years elapsed and at the end of that time, although a poor man, he had prospered sufficiently to justify him in assuming the responsibilities of getting married and raising a family. He thereupon forwarded to the girl of his youthful fancy and who had plighted her troth to him money sufficient to pay a first-class passage from Havre to San Francisco and ample funds for a troussseau befitting his bride-to-be.

In due course of time the boat bearing the object of his boyhood fancy arrived in San Francisco but the young man had been suddenly called to his sheep ranch up the San Joaquin valley and when he returned to meet his bride-to-be and claim his own, she had already arrived and married another.

Now this young man was a philosopher and hunting up his successful rival demanded the money he had advanced the fickle-hearted creature and telling him he was welcome to her. The money being forthcoming he returned to his Kern county ranch and forever banished the faithless one from his mind.

Some years later, when the chief subject of this little romance had arrived at the age of discretion he wooed, won and wedded the beautiful and accomplished lady who with two grown daughters survive him.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Duhring and Master S. Duhring, who have been visiting in Santa Barbara the past two weeks, are expected home Monday. Mr. Duhring writes that he is enjoying his visit immensely and is having the time of his life at the old girlhood home of his wife.

City Marshal Jas. H. Albertson, who has resided in this city for 10, these many years, was 64 years of age last Tuesday. Jim doesn't look it by any means. He hasn't a gray hair in his head, and we know whereof we speak when we say that he has not changed in appearance a particle the past fifteen years. For an old boy we will pit him against any man in the State for youthful appearance.

Dr. A. M. Thomson is still confined to his home with a bad spell of la grippie. That doctors are sometimes compelled to obey the biblical injunction of "physician heal thyself," we might here mention that Dr. Fred F. Sprague, like Dr. Thomson, is not immune from the grippie at least, and was likewise confined to his home several days the fore part of the week from the same complaint but is now entirely recovered.

DEEP SEA FISHING.

Quite as Much a Game of Chance, as Politics or Poker.

You let down a heavy lump of lead and two big hooks baited with clams into thirty, forty or sixty feet of water. Then you wait until something nudges the line or until you suspect that the hooks are bare.

Then you give the line a quick jerk and pull in hand over hand, with more or less resistance, and see what you have drawn into the grab bag.

It may be a silly but nutritious cod, gaping in surprise at this curious termination of his involuntary rise in the world, or a silvery haddock, staring at you with round, reproachful eyes, or a pollock, handsome, but worthless, or a shiny, writhing dogfish, whose villainy is written on every line of his degenerate, chinless face.

It may be a fine garropole of the sea, a sculpin, or a soft-shelled hake from the mud flats. It may be any one of the grotesque products of Neptune's vegetable garden, a sea cucumber, a sea carrot or a sea cabbage, or it may be nothing at all.

When you have made your grab and deposited the result, if it be edible, in the barrel which stands in the middle of the boat, you try another grab, and that's the whole story.

It is astonishing how much amusement apparently sane men get out of such a simple game as this. The interest lies, first, in the united effort to fill the barrel, and, second, in the rivalry among the fishermen as to which of them shall take in the largest cod or the greatest number of haddock, these being regarded as prize packages. The sculpin and the sea vegetables may be compared to comic valentines, which expose the recipient to ridicule.

The dogfish are like tax notices and assessments—the man who gets one of them gets less than nothing, for they count against the catcher. It is quite as much a game of chance as politics or poker. You do not know on which side of the boat the good fish are hidden.

You cannot tell the difference between the nibble of a cod and the bite of a dogfish. You have no idea of what is coming to you until you have hauled in almost all of your line and caught sight of your allotment wriggling and whirling in the blue water. Sometimes you get twins.—Scribner's.

LAWYERS AGAINST TOBACCO.

Early Legislation to Restrict the Use of the Weed.

One of the curiosities of early colonial legislation is the laws enacted against the planting and the use of tobacco. Evidently the magistrates and elders of those days regarded that "creature called tobacco" as one of the many emissaries of the devil, against whom it was their duty to wage constant warfare. The planting of it was forbidden except in small quantities to be used "for mere necessity, for physic, for perservacion of the health, and that the same may be taken privately by ancient men."

All keepers of hotels and other public places were ordered not to "suffer any tobacco to be taken into their houses." If they disobeyed the order, they were required to pay a fine to the "victualer" and one also to "party that takes it." At little later the law was changed so that it was forbidden to "take tobacco in any wine or common victual house except in a private room there, so as the master of said house nor any guest there shall take offense thereat, which, if they do, the said person shall forfeit upon pain of 2 shillings a piece for every such offense."

No one was permitted to use tobacco "publicly," not even in his own house, in the presence of strangers. It was against the law for two men to smoke together. In Windsor every user of tobacco was required to procure a physician's certificate before he was permitted to enjoy the obnoxious weed. All smoking was forbidden within two miles of a meeting house on the Sabbath day. Connecticut, as a great indulgence to travelers, allowed a man to smoke once during a journey of ten miles made not by train, but afoot or by horse locomotion.—New York Press.

WARE YOUR FRIEND'S PLANTS.

"If you have a friend going away for the summer," said the woman of experience, "don't keep a plant for her. The thing will probably die away, and you would consider yourself responsible. I worried through six weeks one summer tending a plant for a friend and then was invited to the country for a week end. I stayed two days in addition. Of course the plant was dead when I came back, and my outing was half spoiled by worrying over it. I bought a duplicate of it the day before my friend returned, and it cost me $2. Even then, she said she thought it looked somewhat peaked."—Exchange.

Cheap Cheer.

A charitable man dropped a nickel in a blind beggar's hat and exclaimed in a benevolent voice, "There, my poor fellow, is a quarter for you."

"Why on earth," said the man's companion, "did you give him a nickel and say it was a quarter?"

"Oh, was the reply, 'I wanted to cheer him up.'—Argonaut.

The Long Conflict.

Little Sally (reading)—What is a prolonged conflict, Harry? Small Harry—I don't know. I asked papa this morning what it was, and he said it was something I couldn't understand until I grew up and got married.—Chicago News.

Commercial Term In Law.

The plaintiff was stating his case: "Your honor, I was walking alongside of the waiting train when this man, who is a stranger to me, and without any cause whatever, reached out of the car window and planted a couple of powerful blows upon my face."

"Your honor," expostulated the defendant, "I was so enraged by the delay of that train and the miserable service of that road in general that I just had to give vent to my feelings in some way. I couldn't restrain myself."

"I feel for you," admitted the judge, who had had occasion to travel on the same road, "but I am compelled to fine you nevertheless. That pair of hand me downs will cost you just $10."—New York Press.

The Solemn Scotchman. A Scottish parson was attending a funeral in his own churchyard. The service over and dust given to dust, the green sod smoothed down over the narrow bed, the company departed. But a worthy man remained behind and approached the parson with a solemn face, as though for serious talk. "Din ye ken what I aye think at a funeral?" Many serious reflections have come to one there, and the clergyman expected some befitting thought. "No. What is it you always think?" The answer was, "I aye think I'm desperate grieved it's no me." The incumbent of that parish was mortified. —Dundee Advertiser.
